

Exclusion of liability

Insofar as legal views are set forth on the sites www.bundesanzeiger.de, www.unternehmensregister.de, www.publikations-plattform.de, and www.aktionärsforum.de, we give notice that these are not binding and that the courts ultimately have to decide.

Data protection statement for the Federal Gazette, the Company Register, the Publication Platform, and the Shareholder Forum.

The Bundesanzeiger Verlag is pleased about your visit to our website and your interest in our company and our services.

We place great value on protecting your personal data. Since both the protection of the private sphere and the protection of our business customers are very important to us, we will treat your personal data confidentially, in compliance with the applicable provisions of data protection law.

This document illustrates for you the various information that we receive from you, how we handle it, and how you can change and update this information.

Collection and use of personal data

We collect, store, and process your transmitted personal data (for example: your name, your address and phone number or email address, as well as data required for billing purposes), provided this is necessary for processing enquiries, orders (e.g. fee-based retrieval of original register data, publication orders, subscribing to Info Services or newsletters), or the technical administration of the websites and for purposes to which we are obligated. To make this task easier, your data is in certain cases exchanged with third parties involved in order processing and billing. Other than that, we will not disclose your personal data to third parties, unless we are required to do so on the basis of mandatory provisions, this is necessary for fee collection, or you specify this yourself. Information that is not associated with your actual identity, such as favourite websites or frequency of visits to a site, is not personal data.

Your registered data and your billing data (e.g. credit card or bank account details) are always transmitted into our systems in encrypted form. This protects communications between you and our web server and prevents misuse of data. For encryption, we deploy SSL (Secure Socket Layer), a recognised, widespread system on the Internet that is also used, e.g. by banks and online stores for Internet transactions, and is considered secure in the current version.

Cookies will be utilised on the platforms for security and technical reasons. You can block the use of cookies by adjusting the relevant settings in your browser, although this may restrict the use of some functions on our websites.

Collection and processing of non-personal data

We do not collect personal data when our website is merely visited. However, each web server automatically stores information when the websites are accessed. For the purpose of system security, our web server temporarily records only the IP number of the requesting computer, the browser you are using, the time and date of access, the website that you came from to visit us, the websites that you visit while on our websites, and the Uniform Resource Locations (URLs) requested on our websites. This information is stored in anonymous form. It is not possible to draw any conclusions about your identity or your individual behaviour.

Computer-related data are stored by us in order to register trends and generate statistics. These stored data also serve the purposes of identifying and tracing unauthorised attempts to access our web servers. We generate profile information about the use of our websites solely in anonymised form and only in order to improve the user experience and optimise the offer to interested users. It is not used to generate or process any personal surfing profiles or the like.

Your rights/contact data

You have a right to information concerning the personal data collected about you. If you would like information about your personal data or their correction or about unsubscribing to Info Services, you can do this yourself on the respective homepage via your existing login ("My Data").
